These templates are educational and business workflow resources. They are not legal, financial, medical, clinical, regulatory, or HIPAA compliance advice. Adapt all templates to your jurisdiction, practice policies, professional standards, and applicable advertising regulations.

1. Prompt Library — Patient-Friendly Education

Each prompt below is a tested starting point. Copy and customize for your practice voice. Every output must pass the Content Review Checklist in Section 2 before publishing.

How To Use These Prompts

1. Replace [bracketed placeholders] with your specific topic or context.
2. Paste the prompt into your approved AI tool.
3. Read the full output before using any part.
4. Run the Content Review Checklist (Section 2).
5. Edit, then publish or file.

Prompt 1 — General Educational Post

Write a patient-friendly educational post about [TOPIC] for a dental practice social media channel or newsletter. Audience: general adult patients with no clinical background. Tone: warm, clear, non-alarming. Length: 150–200 words. Do not include diagnosis, clinical recommendations, guaranteed outcomes, or before-and-after claims. Use 'may,' 'can,' or 'is associated with' where appropriate. End with a gentle prompt to schedule a consultation or ask a question at their next visit. This is a first draft for human review.

Prompt 2 — Biological / Holistic Dentistry Education

Write an educational post explaining [TOPIC — e.g., the connection between oral health and systemic wellness / what biological dentistry considers / why materials matter] for a biological dental practice audience. Tone: curious, evidence-respectful, non-alarming. Length: 150–250 words. Do not make cure, reversal, or treatment promises. Avoid language that positions biological dentistry against conventional dentistry. Frame as 'a perspective worth discussing with your dental team.' This is a first draft for human review.

Prompt 3 — FAQ Response Draft

Draft a warm, clear answer to this common patient question: '[PASTE QUESTION].' Audience: general dental patients. Tone: reassuring, plain language. Do not diagnose, prescribe, or guarantee outcomes. If the answer depends on individual factors, note that patients should discuss their specific situation at a consultation. Length: 100–150 words. This is a first draft for human review.

Prompt 4 — Newsletter Section Draft

Write a newsletter section on [TOPIC] for a biological dental practice. Tone: warm, educational, conversational. Length: 200–300 words. Include: a brief explanation of why this topic matters to patients, one practical takeaway, and a soft call to action (schedule, ask a question, reply to this email). Do not include clinical advice, diagnosis, or guaranteed outcomes. This is a first draft for human review.

Prompt 5 — Social Caption (Short)

Write a 1–3 sentence social media caption about [TOPIC] for a dental practice. Tone: warm and approachable. Do not include clinical claims, guarantees, or before-and-after promises. End with a simple question or invitation to learn more. This is a first draft for human review.

Prompt 6 — Team Training Content

Write a brief internal training note for a dental team explaining [TOPIC — e.g., how to answer patient questions about AI tools / how to respond to questions about holistic dentistry / our position on mercury-free dentistry]. Audience: front desk and clinical support staff. Tone: professional, straightforward. Length: 200–250 words. This is a first draft for team lead review.

Prompt 7 — Objection Response Draft

Draft a warm response to this patient concern: '[PASTE OBJECTION OR CONCERN]'. Tone: empathetic, clear, non-defensive. Acknowledge the concern, provide one or two clear, factual points, and invite the patient to discuss further at a consultation. Do not promise outcomes or dismiss the concern. Length: 100–150 words. This is a first draft for human review.

Prompt 8 — Referral or Partnership Outreach Draft

Draft a professional outreach message to [TYPE OF PROVIDER — e.g., a naturopathic doctor / a myofunctional therapist / a sleep medicine physician] introducing our biological dental practice and exploring a referral or collaboration relationship. Tone: collegial, respectful, specific about what we do. Length: 150–200 words. Do not make clinical claims. This is a first draft for review before sending.

2. Content Review and Claims Checklist

Run every AI-generated piece of content through this checklist before using or publishing it. One 'No' answer stops publication until the issue is resolved.

Pass / Fail Checklist

Check	Pass If...	Fail If...
No diagnosis	Content describes general topics or possibilities.	Content names or implies a diagnosis for a reader.
No treatment instruction	Content discusses what practices consider, not what patients should do.	Content tells readers to take a specific clinical action.
No outcome guarantee	Language uses 'may,' 'can,' 'is associated with.'	Language says 'will,' 'cures,' 'reverses,' 'eliminates.'
No before-and-after promise	Visual or text results are absent or clearly sourced.	Content implies predictable individual results.
No patient-specific advice	Content is general and educational.	Content responds to a named or implied individual's health.
No unsupported claim	Any factual claim has a source the reviewer can verify.	Any claim cannot be sourced or is outside reviewer expertise.
Regulatory language present	'Results may vary' or equivalent where appropriate.	Guaranteed, absolute, or superlative outcome language used.
Disclaimer present	Post includes or links to the practice's content disclaimer.	No disclaimer, especially on sensitive health topics.
Tone passes	Warm, clear, non-alarming, not dismissive of conventional care.	Alarmist, fear-based, or positions practice against competitors.
Human reviewed	A team member read it in full and signed off.	Published directly from AI output without review.

Social caption	Short social media text, image optional.	1–3 sentences
Team note	Internal communication for staff.	200–250 words

Monthly Review

1. Count posts planned vs. published.
2. Note which topics got the most engagement or questions.
3. Identify any review bottlenecks (too long in review, rejected drafts).
4. Update the Prompt Library with any new prompts that worked well.
5. Set next month's primary topic theme.
